

Degrowth in post-socialist European countries

V. Liegey, L. Živčić, V. Cvijanović, T.
Tomašević, B. Ančić, M. Domazet

Post-socialist Europe – semiperiphery

- Degrowth movement: privileged northern/western European position
- Austerity as the bogey-man of degrowth
- Societal memories of different development model...
- Advantageous development attainment / ecological footprint trade-off

Today

- Mladen Domazet & Branko Ancic: We Need to Change: analysing potential for degrowth across Europe
- Vincent Liegey: A Degrowth Project in Hungary
- Lidija Zivcic: Degrowth as a path for a country at a crossroad?
- Vladimir Cvijanovic & Tomislav Tomasevic: Degrowth as an option in Croatia

Degrowing among the non-grown...

- Organisations and individuals in a green-left cleavage on semiperiphery (SEE, WB...)
- Degrowth: unifying topic of environmental sustainability and social justice – the socio-economic answer to climate crunch
- Not enthusiastically received in recently Westernised populations – cars, holidays, IKEA...
- „Degrowth as a shared narrative” for better, non-alienated life – niches and laboratories

Organisations – websites

Publications – websites, campaigns, books

We Need to Change

Mapping Croatia's potential for sustainable development

Analysis prepared for the Heinrich Böll Stiftung Croatia by Mladen Domazet, Danijela Dolenc and Branko Ančić

HEINRICH BÖLL STIFTUNG
CROATIA

